The Language Schools

HISTORY
The Middlebury College Language Schools were pioneers in the development of specialized study of Modern Languages in this country. The German School was founded in 1915, followed by the French and Spanish in 1916 and 1917. The Italian School was added in 1932, Russian in 1945, Chinese in 1966, and Japanese in 1970.

The Schools in Europe opened in 1949 with the first session of the School in France in cooperation with the University of Paris. This was followed in 1951 with a similar program in Madrid, after which the Schools in Mainz and Florence were established in 1959 and 1960.

PHILOSOPHY
The Language Schools aim to give thorough training in the language and cultural heritage of the foreign country. Equal attention is given to all areas of instruction, from introductory courses to advanced seminars. Students are welcome to apply for a single summer at any level or as candidates for one of the degree programs to be completed over several summers in Vermont or at one of the Schools Abroad. For those who are currently teaching or who plan a career using foreign languages, the M.A. is conceived as a course of study in itself and not simply as the first half of a doctoral program. The D.M.L. (Doctor of Modern Languages) degree differs from the traditional Ph.D. in its emphasis on the combination of both scholarly and professional training for teaching at the college or university level.

PROGRAM
Courses are offered at both the graduate and the undergraduate levels on the Vermont campus during the summer and at the Schools in FRANCE, GERMANY, ITALY and SPAIN during the academic year.

Summer
Courses for graduate credit in FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, RUSSIAN and SPANISH lead to M.A. and D.M.L. (Doctor of Modern Languages) degrees.

Courses for undergraduate credit provide intensive instruction in CHINESE, FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, JAPANESE, RUSSIAN and SPANISH.

Abroad
Graduate students may continue their course of study in FRANCE, GERMANY, ITALY and SPAIN.

Undergraduates may enroll in the Middlebury Junior Programs in FRANCE, GERMANY, ITALY and SPAIN. In some cases, depending on individual qualifications, a preliminary summer at Middlebury may be required.
ADMISSION

Application to the Schools should be made early. Admission standards are high, but each application is considered individually. Acceptance decisions are made throughout the winter and spring months until full enrollment numbers are reached after which all applicants are placed on a waiting list.

COURSES OF STUDY AND DEGREE PROGRAMS

The intensive summer program of language study in CHINESE, FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, JAPANESE, RUSSIAN and SPANISH is offered at several levels. It is open to students who wish to improve or refresh their foreign language skills or to gain proficiency in a new language necessary for their professional careers.

Summer courses offering advanced undergraduate or graduate credit are open to students enrolled in degree programs at other institutions who wish to transfer their Middlebury credits to their own degree.

The Junior Program Abroad offers two semesters credit towards the B.A. degree to be transferred to the student's home institution.

The Master of Arts in FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, RUSSIAN and SPANISH requires an approved program of twelve units/courses to be earned over several summers on the Vermont campus or in one summer in Vermont followed by one academic year abroad.

The Doctor of Modern Languages in FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN, RUSSIAN or SPANISH requires an additional twelve units beyond the M.A. The degree may be earned through study on the Vermont campus during the summer and at one of the Schools Abroad during the academic year. More complete details are available on request to the Language Schools Office.
The Summer Program

Language Pledge: More than fifty years of experience have proven the effectiveness of the Middlebury insistence of using the foreign language both in and out of the classroom. All graduate students are required to sign a formal statement agreeing to use the foreign language as the only medium of communication during the entire session. A modified language pledge is required even of students in the beginning courses.

Life in the Schools: Middlebury's country setting is ideal for summer study. Students live on campus in the dormitories assigned to each School and they take their meals with the faculty and staff of their School. Extra-curricular activities include films, concerts, lectures, singing groups, picnics, and various sports such as tennis, swimming, volley ball, and soccer. There are attractive opportunities for hiking in the nearby Green Mountains and for bicycling along the quiet roads of the Champlain Valley.

Faculty: The Faculty is made up of experienced professors of Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian, and Spanish. All are specialists in their field and many come to Middlebury from abroad, thus ensuring in each School the stimulus of fresh contacts with the foreign language and culture.

Curriculum: All students are expected to enroll for the full session and to carry a full academic load.

The undergraduate curriculum is divided into levels, each of which is a full-time program. Students may enroll for credit in only one level at a time. Placement is determined by testing and according to previous study of the language.

The graduate curriculum is made up of a large number of individual courses in linguistics, literature, the social sciences, art history and foreign language pedagogy. A normal load for each student is three courses per summer, to be selected in consultation with the Director or Dean. First-year students are placed in courses most appropriate to their linguistic proficiency at the time of registration. Some students may be required to take one or more courses at the advanced undergraduate level before beginning a full load of graduate work.

Dates and Fees: All Schools are in session during June, July and August for periods ranging from six to nine weeks. Fees for tuition, room and board vary according to the length of the session. Complete information on Dates and Fees is included on page 45 of this catalogue.

Credits: Courses for undergraduate credit in French, German, Italian and Spanish award six credits for each level. Courses in the nine-week session of Chinese, Japanese and Russian award ten credits for each level.

Courses for graduate credit in French, German, Italian and Spanish and all six-week courses in Russian offer one unit of credit as defined on page 00 of this catalogue.

The 1975 session: Planning for each session of the Language Schools begins many months in advance in order to provide students with as much information as possible on the following year's faculty and courses. Sometimes it is necessary to make late changes if unforeseen problems occur, and this year in particular it has proven extremely difficult for some Schools to complete their preparation.
The postal strike in France, for example, has interrupted correspondence with many faculty members, thus making it impossible at this time for the French School to list all courses to be offered. However, full details will be included in the Registration Bulletin of each School to be sent to all accepted students in the Spring of 1975.

Students wishing to take courses for undergraduate credit should read the descriptions carefully before completing the application form. Graduate students will be provided with similar descriptions in the Registration Bulletins.

A new system of numbering courses is being used in 1975. Numbers used in past years are given in parenthesis for the benefit of former students. Also, the necessary distinction between the six, seven, and nine week sessions is made as follows: † seven weeks, ‡ nine weeks. The six week sessions are uncoded.

Program of Studies

CS 101-102 Beginning Chinese‡

An intensive introduction to "Mandarin". The course begins with a four-day concentrated study of Mandarin phonetics and the Gwoyeu Romaatzyh tonal-spelling system of romanization. Chinese characters are also introduced in the first week, along with simple vocabulary items for daily use. For the next six and a half weeks, students concentrate on the first ten lessons of the Mandarin Primer, which is supplemented with sentence pattern drills and exercises prepared at Middlebury. A complete series of tapes, including vocabulary and pattern drills, prepared at Middlebury and Harvard, accompanies each lesson. For the last week and a half Elementary Chinese (Peking, 1972) is used to introduce simplified characters and the Pin-yin system of romanization. Other romanization systems will also be presented.

Each day the class meets as a whole for two hours for the introduction and explanation of new material and for introductory pattern practice, then it divides into small sections (5-8 students) for two hours of drill. Each student receives two fifteen-minute periods of private tutorial per week. Preparation, including work in the language laboratory, usually requires about five hours of study each day.

The medium of instruction gradually shifts from English to Chinese, and students are encouraged to speak less and less English outside of class. By the end of the session students have a good command of basic grammatical constructions, a working vocabulary of over a thousand words, and an active knowledge of about 600 characters.
CS 201-202 Intermediate Chinese I*

Emphasizing both the audio-lingual approach and the reading of Chinese character text, this course covers Study in Taiwan, Twenty Lectures in Chinese Culture, and The Chinese Reader (I & II). The course is taught primarily in Chinese and is open to students with active knowledge of 300–400 characters. At the end of the course students are able to recognize about 1800 characters and to write at least 900 from memory. They are able to speak with some fluency on conversational topics, to write short compositions, and to read short articles and current newspapers.

Assignments include: 1) translation; 2) composition; 3) sentence patterns; 4) using Chinese to explain the meanings of Chinese idioms and phrases; 5) sentence completion. Daily work outside of class, including time spent in the language laboratory, requires approximately five hours.

CS 251-252 Intermediate Chinese II*

While continuing the audio-lingual approach, this course also emphasizes the reading of Chinese character texts (both standard and simplified characters). The first part of the course covers selections from The Chinese Reader (I & II), Tarn Butyng, and Twenty Lectures in Chinese Culture, with the second part shifting to the reading of newspaper selections, essays, and short stories in modern Chinese. The course is taught primarily in Chinese and is open to students with active knowledge of at least 500–600 characters. At the end of the course students are able to recognize 2000 characters and to write at least 1100 from memory. They are able to speak with some fluency on conversational topics, to write short compositions and to read current newspapers and articles by modern authors with the aid of a dictionary.

Assignments include: 1) translation; 2) composition; 3) sentence patterns; 4) using Chinese to explain the meanings of idioms and phrases; 5) sentence completion. Daily work outside of class, including time spent in the language laboratory, requires approximately five hours.

CS 301-302 Advanced Chinese (Modern Chinese)*

This course aims at further development of overall language proficiency through extensive reading of modern texts selected from a wide range of styles and genres. Readings include: 1) essays on academic subjects; 2) modern vernacular literature: essays, short stories, and plays; 3) contemporary materials: political writings from the People's Republic of China and from newspapers. Classes are conducted entirely in Chinese. Individual laboratory exercises are required daily.

In addition to the 15 class hours weekly, students are also occupied approximately five hours daily with vocabulary review, sentence patterns and translation, preparation of class materials, listening to lesson tapes, recorded dictation exercises, individual meetings with teachers, preparing for quizzes, and composition writing.

CS 401-402 Classical Chinese*

This course is open to students who have no wenyan training but who have completed three years of modern Chinese or its equivalent. Except for occasional explanations of difficult grammatical constructions, the course is conducted entirely in Chinese. While the prime concern of the course is training in the reading of wenyan, students have ample oral and written practice to enable them to maintain proficiency in these aspects of the language. Students also have an opportunity to improve their reading of baihua, since explanations of the texts are provided in written baihua as well as through lectures. Laboratory tapes accompany all of the lessons as an aid to assimilation of the texts.

Assignments include: 1) translation from classical into modern Chinese, and vice versa; 2) writing sentences with classical Chinese expressions; 3) grammatical practice (usage of particles and analysis of sentence structure); 4) compositions in both classical and modern Chinese. Daily work outside of class, including time spent in the language laboratory, requires approximately five to six hours.

CS 501-502 Readings in Chinese Culture*
The course is divided into units of two or three weeks in length, each focusing on a broad topic.

Designed for students with at least three years of Chinese, and with an elementary knowledge of classical Chinese, the course is conducted exclusively in Chinese. As this is essentially still a language course, emphasis is placed upon developing to a high level the writing, speaking and reading skills of students. Writing ability is developed through completion of weekly essays or translations of English articles which are corrected and explicated in individual diagnostic sessions.

In addition to the weekly essays or translation, there is a term paper, the topic of which is determined by the student's individual interest. A group discussion on current affairs is conducted once a week.

Daily written exercises are based on the material discussed in class. These exercises include answering questions put by the instructor, translations form classical into modern Chinese, and various exercises for retention of new vocabulary. Daily work outside of class, including time spent in the language laboratory, requires approximately five hours.

Life in the School: Apart from the formal work of the school, there are opportunities for students to become introduced to a number of facets of Chinese culture. There are films, both from Taiwan and the People's Republic, guest lectures—both in Chinese and English—and demonstrations of Chinese music. In the past, students have used their spare time to study calligraphy, Chinese cooking, Chinese music, and t'ai-chi ch'üan. One of the high points of the session has been “China Night,” when students both write and produce Chinese plays and skits, or take part in musical performances. There has been also an active participation in athletics, such as volleyball and tennis, as well as picnics and other outings. Such activities help greatly to ease the pressures of a long, intensive session, and over the years have become an important part of the life of the school.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

FR 101–102 Beginning French†

This course is for students who have never studied French. It is equivalent to first year French in a regular academic program. The main emphasis is on speaking, but the course also develops the skills of listening and reading, and, to a lesser degree, writing.

FR 201–202; FR 211–212; FR 221–222 Intermediate French†

The emphasis on speaking and listening is maintained, but reading and writing are also systematically developed. The division into three levels permits careful grouping of students according to their level of performance. The organization of the three courses is flexible so as to permit maximum individualization.

FR 401–402–403 (90) Advanced French

At the conclusion of this course students are expected to be able to understand a lecture or a casual conversation; to read standard written texts in journalistic or literary prose; to speak fluently with a pronunciation acceptable to a native speaker; to write a grammatically correct prose, using idiomatic expression.

Curriculum and Degree Requirements: M.A. candidates must demonstrate proficiency, either through designated course work or by testing, in phonetics, conversation, and composition. They must also take at least one course in language analysis, two in civilization, and three in literature. Courses in professional preparation are strongly recommended for anyone already teaching or planning to teach, and are required of students planning to request a recommendation for teaching.
All new graduate students will take three placement tests on arrival: one in written French (grammar/composition), one in phonetics, and one in conversation. The results of the tests will determine which courses the students should elect for credit. In order for a student to be exempted in any of these areas, he or she must have attained the level of FR 502 (Patterns of Conversational French), FR 504 (Pronunciation of Contemporary French); FR 510 (Advanced Grammar) and FR 611 (Composition).

Life in the School: The French School prides itself in offering not only a fine academic program, but an intensive extra-curricular one as well. A theater atelier has always been a special feature of the School: both students and professors are given the opportunity to act in or design sets for classical, modern, and light theater pieces. The French film series gives everyone an opportunity to see the latest in cinema, and to strengthen aural comprehension. Evening lectures and concerts provide opportunities to become acquainted with other aspects of French culture. The dining room serves as a place where one can engage in relaxed conversation in French.

The alumni organization of the French School, Amicale de Middlebury, provides a certain number of scholarships for the French Summer School and the Graduate Program in France. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of financial need and academic excellence.

Amicale de Middlebury, an association of alumni, professors, students and friends of the French School, maintains the spirit of fellowship and comradeship among all those who have been associated with the School. Each summer there is an alumni weekend at which time former students and faculty are invited to Middlebury to participate in lectures, dinners, and the on-going activities of the session. Newsletters are sent four times a year to keep alumni up-to-date on the activities of the French School.

Program of Studies

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

GN 101-102  Elementary German†
Daily activities normally include four hours of classroom instruction plus an hour or two of additional work in the language laboratory. The course consists of lectures, drills and laboratory. In the lectures, students are guided through the exercises they are to prepare for the following drill. Drilling is done in groups of about ten students. The course is designed to cover all major aspects of contemporary German; reading materials are introduced in about the fourth week. Throughout the course audio-visual materials are used to complement the printed word. Gerd Schneider and staff

GN 201-202  Intermediate and Advanced German†
Daily activities normally include four hours of classroom instruction plus additional work in the language laboratory. The course begins with a comprehensive grammar review; this is followed by a phase in which texts are used as a basis for further language instruction and for the acceleration of reading speed. Progress in the language is supplemented by textual interpretation. This course will significantly increase the student's fluency in spoken German and facility in reading. Recent German television materials are used to extend communicative skills and comprehension. Gerd Schneider and staff

GN 510  Oral Practice
Small daily classes are devoted to guided discussions of assigned relevant topics and to graded vocabulary exercises and occasional grammar problems. Oral reports are also required. Gertraud Brodhead

GN 512  Stylistics
The course offers structured writing practice, discussion of complex points of grammar, sentence structure and correct expression. There will be at least two written assignments per week. Gertraud Brodhead

GRADUATE COURSES

Qualified undergraduates may take courses on the 600 and 700 levels with permission of the Director and the Instructor.
GN 601 (1)  Introduction to Literary Scholarship

The course consists of general lectures and small discussion groups, where the material will be examined in detail. Basic terminology and techniques of literary analysis and research methods are introduced through study of texts and daily discussion. Several topical lectures (imagery, theory of the novel, theory of genres, tragic and grotesque) will be presented by faculty members according to the areas of their special interest. This course is required for students who plan to attend the School in Germany and for students who wish to become candidates for the M.A. degree at Middlebury.

Graduate Curriculum: The courses listed above are in two general categories: courses numbered 500–699 are part of the Grundstudium, which includes the required basic courses; courses in the range 700–899 are in the Aufbaustudium.

Graduate students normally take three courses, including at least one literature or civilization course. Advisors will assist students in selecting courses and designing programs of study.

The German School offers five modes of instruction with the following special assignments: Introductory Courses: two papers of three to four pages written outside class, and two critical essays written in class; Courses: short oral reports based on written notes rather than research papers, and mid-term and final examinations; Proseminars: three papers of three to four pages each, written outside class; Seminars: one long paper, not to exceed 20 pages; Workshops: participation in a stage production in addition to classroom work.

M.A. candidates not going abroad must take a proseminar and a seminar, in that sequence. The seminar may be taken as early as the second summer, and preferably not later than the third. Course GN 601: Introduction to Literary Scholarship is a prerequisite for admission to a seminar. Students going abroad must take both this course and one proseminar or seminar.

Degree Requirements: The following courses are required for the M.A. degree in German: GN 601: Introduction to Literary Scholarship; GN 621: Introduction to Linguistics; one of the following: GN 632: Introduction to German Culture and Civilization, GN 630: Introduction to Contemporary Germany (FRG), or 631: Introduction to Contemporary Germany (GDR); GN 620: German Phonetics; GN 612: Stylistics; GN 610: Advanced Oral Practice; GN 691: Methods of Teaching German; and one proseminar in literature.

Candidates may concentrate the remaining four courses in one or two areas: literature, linguistics or civilization. One of the four courses must be a seminar.

With the Director's permission and the instructor's consent, courses on the 700 level may be taken as seminars to fulfill the degree requirement.

With the Director's permission, Advanced Oral Practice (GN 610) may be waived on the basis of demonstrated proficiency to allow the student to take another course.

Life in the School: The 1975 German School will concentrate on 20th century Austrian and German literature and on Landeskunde of both German states. For the first time, the School will offer LANDESKUNDE of the German Democratic Republic (GN 631) and Methodology of LANDESKUNDE (GN 732). In addition, the School will continue to offer basic courses in language, literary analysis, culture and pedagogy. The faculty includes specialists in 20th century Austrian and German literature, Landeskunde, drama and language study. An interdisciplinary approach will be stressed. There will be weekly colloquia on subjects discussed in courses and seminars. Students will have an opportunity to exercise their performing talents in the drama workshop in connection with Henry Schmidt's course Revolutionary Drama (GN 766) and in the chorus to be organized by Josef Kunz. As in the past, a film series and a faculty play-reading are scheduled. This year the list of lectures tentatively includes Der Zauberberg (Josef Kunz), Georg Trakl (Alfred Doppler), and The Literature of the Working Class (Bernd Witte).
The German School is celebrating its 60th anniversary in 1975. A special convocation is planned in honor of the founding of the School in 1915.

As in the past, the German School hopes to be able to award scholarship funds made available by the Federal Republic of Germany. For additional information on financial aid, please refer to page 46 of this Catalogue.

All Alumni and Alumnae of the German School are invited to join FIDES (Freunde der Deutschen Schule). A newsletter is distributed to alumni and a FIDES-weekend during the summer session is tentatively planned. President pro tem is Margot McKinney, M.A. 1972.

Curriculum and Degree Requirements: Candidates for the Master of Arts degree in Italian must fulfill the following distribution requirements: One language course at the 500 level, the Stylistics course, one linguistics course, four literature courses, two civilization courses, a methods course (for candidates seeking a Middlebury recommendation to teach). The Stylistics course may be taken twice for credit since the material varies each year.
At registration, graduate students consult with the Director to choose courses which can help most in improving control of the language and/or relate best to a comprehensive program of study, particularly if the student is a candidate for a Middlebury College advanced degree.

Life in the School: The life of the School is enriched by lectures, readings, social gatherings, and choral singing. Each year, in the fourth week of the session, a student production of an Italian play is given in Wright Theater. Picnics, tennis, the popular game of "bocce", volley ball, soccer, and hiking afford pleasant relaxation.

Grateful acknowledgement is made of the following scholarships, made available through the generosity of friends of the School:

- The Italian Teachers' Club of Hartford (Connecticut) Scholarship, offered for the thirty-sixth consecutive year.
- The Luke and Anna Nolfi Scholarship.
- The AMISA Scholarships, given by the Association of Italian School Alumni, in memory of Dr. Nicholas R. Locascio and in honor of Pierina B. and Salvatore J. Castiglione.

Membership in the Association of Middlebury Italian School Alumni (AMISA) is open to students, alumni, faculty members and friends of the School. The aims of the Association are "to encourage and advance, culturally and materially, the Italian School," to keep its members informed of the School activities and students, and to maintain the spirit of cordiality which the members associate with the Italian School. The nominal yearly dues are used almost exclusively for scholarships. The Association has also made several gifts of books to Middlebury College through the Italian School. The School is extremely grateful to AMISA for the tangible proof it has so often given of its warm support for the Middlebury program of Italian studies.

In addition to its annual winter meeting the Association holds a summer reunion on the Middlebury campus, and encourages the scheduling of regional meetings by interested members. AMISA will hold its 25th annual summer meeting at Middlebury on July 11–14, 1975.

JA 101–102 Elementary Japanese‡

This beginning course teaches the basic grammatical structure and vocabulary of modern colloquial Japanese (Tokyo speech) through aural-oral drills and exercises by gradually introducing kana and kanji. Audio-visual materials—tapes, records, slides—are used to give the course a modern cultural context, and to encourage students in free conversation.

By the end of the session, students have mastered the basic grammatical structure of modern colloquial Japanese, with an active vocabulary of approximately 1500 words, and a good command of kana and at least 200 kanji. They should be able to carry on basic daily conversation with little difficulty, and should have a good grasp of the socio-cultural background of modern Japanese.

JA 201–202 Intermediate Japanese‡

The second level course aims at mastery of modern colloquial Japanese grammar by means of consistent review and reinforcement of major grammatical points. More advanced vocabulary is acquired through aural-oral drills, readings, and written exercises. The emphasis is increasingly on reading and writing, but oral proficiency remains the central objective of the course.

Nearly all class work is conducted in Japanese. Expanded aural-oral practice includes use of tape recordings of Japanese radio and television programs.

By the end of the session, students should have a good knowledge of modern Japanese grammar, improved fluency in daily conversation, skill in the use of basic reference materials, the ability to read and write approximately 850 kanji, and to write short essays.
JA 301–302  Advanced Japanese

Emphasis is given to furthering students' reading ability, especially in the area of modern Japanese expository writings. The course is also designed to advance students' skill in using more sophisticated vocabulary oral discussion and composition. The readings for the course cover a wide range of topics: history, politics, sociology, sinology and literature. Students are also exposed to readings in journalese. Also, four compositions and one substantial translation of a material chosen by the student are required.

By the end of the session, students should be able to read modern Japanese materials with reasonable speed, to handle various reference materials with dexterity, and to read and write at least all tooyoo kanji (1850). Students should be able to carry on daily conversations with less difficulty. In order to achieve a high level of aural-oral ability, students listen to specially prepared advanced comprehension passages, and record their answers to test questions on the tapes during individual laboratory work.

JA 401–402  Advanced Readings and Seminar on Japanese Culture

This course is designed for advanced graduate and undergraduate students in Japanese. The prerequisite is three or more years of Japanese training. The course is divided into a number of units of a few weeks duration. Each unit focuses on readings in one of several disciplines (such as History, Literature, Philosophy or Religion) in response to students' interests and needs. The course is conducted exclusively in Japanese and it demands a high level of proficiency in all four language skills. Emphasis is placed on the development of writing ability, and students are expected to write four or five long essays which will be corrected and explicated in individual diagnostic sessions.

Life in the School: The main concern of the Japanese School is to teach Japanese and to provide opportunities outside the classroom for the student to become better acquainted with certain features of Japanese culture. Thus the school calendar makes room for a schedule of Japanese films, lectures by visiting scholars, and such things as demonstrations of Japanese music, calligraphy, the tea ceremony, and ikebana. In addition, there are opportunities for informal participation in athletics, as well as picnics and other outings.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

RU 101-102  Beginning Russian‡

This course develops all four skills (listening, speaking, reading and writing) as well as giving a firm foundation for understanding Russian word formation. At the end of the course students have an active vocabulary of about 1,000 words. Almost all major points of grammar are covered.

R. Baker and Staff
RU 201–202  Intermediate (Second-Year) Russian*
This course contains a thorough review and expands the students' understanding of Russian grammar, stressing continued development of all four skills. Special attention is paid to unprefix verbs of motion and to the reading of contemporary texts. A. Baker and Staff

RU 301–302  Advanced Intermediate (Third-Year) Russian*
This course concentrates on some of the more complicated points of Russian grammar. Special attention is paid to prefixed verbs of motion and to training in phonetics. Students read contemporary texts and develop confidence in the oral use of Russian in practical situations. Orth and Staff

RU 303 (2)  Intermediate Conversation
This course is for students who have a good command of basic grammar but who need to develop ease and assurance in oral self-expression and an active practical vocabulary. Staff

RU 305 (3)  Practical Phonetics and Diction (6 weeks, or as an intensive two-week course preceding six-week session)
This study of Russian phonetics stresses correct pronunciation and intonation. Sloane

RU 403 (6)  Advanced Conversation
This course is for students with good active control of grammar and with considerable fluency in Russian who need additional intensive oral practice and training in self-expression. Staff

RU 405 (6)  Advanced Grammar and Syntax
Students who have a strong active control of the fundamentals of Russian grammar study some of the more complex points of grammar and syntax. Staff

RU 637 (78)  Post-Stalin Soviet Culture  Glazov
RU 665 (37)  Free Soviet Literature Since Stalin  Glazov
RU 671 (41)  Nineteenth-Century Russian Poetry  Elagin
RU 676  Twentieth-Century Literature on the Screen  Elagin
RU 889  Seminar on Russian Literature: Turgenev  Grebenschikov
Curriculum and Degree Requirements: Students enrolled in the nine-week session take only one intensive course which meets 3-4 hours per day. Students in the six-week session normally take three courses. Graduate students may, with the Director's permission, take four courses after successfully completing one summer in the School. (An extra course fee of $180 will be charged for a fourth course in the six-week session.) A degree candidate may take less than a normal course load if he or she needs less than three courses to complete degree requirements.

No student will be accepted for study in graduate level courses until he or she has demonstrated satisfactory proficiency on tests of listening comprehension, speaking, reading and writing. These tests are administered on Friday of the registration period.

M.A. candidates are required to take at least one seminar course on the Middlebury campus. Candidates for M.A. degree will be required to attain satisfactory scores on tests of listening comprehension, speaking, reading and writing before the degree will be granted. These tests will be administered on Saturday at the end of the third week of classes. Degree candidates who wish recommendations for teaching positions are required to take course RU 521, Advanced Phonetics, and course RU 591 Methods and Materials for Teaching Russian.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE HAS NO OVERSEAS PROGRAM IN RUSSIAN.

Life in the School: The School endeavors to make everything in the life of the student during his stay contribute as effectively and pleasantly as possible to furthering his mastery of the language. Similarity of aims fosters an esprit de corps, while constant association with instructors at the dining tables, in songs and games, on hikes and picnics, no less than in the classroom, brings intellectual stimulus and added opportunity for advancing language proficiency.

The School believes that extra-curricular activities play an important part in the Middlebury way of mastering languages, and students are expected to participate actively. Picnics, excursions, vecherinki with musical and dramatic entertainments, special lectures by faculty members and guest speakers, and Russian movies provide ample recreational activity. Evenings are regularly set aside for songs and for learning Russian folk dances. Students are encouraged to bring musical instruments and Russian or instrumental records suitable for dancing and informal vecherinki.

UNDERGRADUATE COURSES

SP 101–102 Beginning Spanish†
A course for beginners who want to master the basic structures and vocabulary of the language. An ordered presentation based on two approaches—the underlying grammatical patterns of language, and language in its situational context—will focus on all four of the language skills: understanding the spoken word, speaking, reading, and writing.

SP 201–202 Intermediate Spanish†
For the student who wants to acquire a more thorough understanding of the fundamentals of Spanish. Equal emphasis will be placed on reading, writing, and speaking the language.

SP 319 Advanced Spanish: Grammar and Composition†
A rigorous grammar and composition course for students who need further intensive study of the structure of the Spanish language.

SP 360 Advanced Spanish: Introduction to the Study of Literature†
A course designed to prepare students for advanced study in literature, introducing them to basic theoretical and practical approaches to literary analysis and providing them with practice in critical writing. Following a study of general and fundamental considerations, attention will be focused on basic genres: novel, short story, poetry, drama. Readings of representative works in each genre will be examined in depth.

Curriculum and Degree Requirements: All first-year graduate students are normally required to take Advanced Spanish Language and two other courses. Admission to Advanced Spanish Language is determined by a placement examination administered by mail in the Spring to all first-year students. A firm command of spoken and written Spanish is a prerequisite for the Master's Degree.

All candidates for the M.A. are required to fulfill distribution requirements in the three principal areas of language, culture and civilization, and literature. Students are advised individually as to the most appropriate course of study to be followed, according to proficiency and experience on acceptance and to future professional expectations. Candidates preparing for a teaching career are advised to take at least one course in the area of professional preparation.

Life in the School: The Spanish School provides students with an opportunity to immerse themselves in a total Hispanic experience, enriching their classroom exposure to the language, culture and literature with a wide variety of outside activities and events that involve the whole Spanish School community, faculty and students. They may live the language at the dining tables, at picnics, parties, formal and informal singing groups (bring along your musical instruments), in hiking and swimming and generally enjoying—in Spanish—the beautiful Vermont summer. They may enjoy Spanish films, theatrical presentations, lectures by faculty members and guest speakers, and they may look forward to contributing to a Spanish School newspaper.

Two of the scholarships offered in Spanish bear the names of distinguished friends of the School:
The Juan A. Centeno Scholarship: Professor Centeno was Director of the School from 1935–1948.
The Luke and Anna Nolfi Scholarship.
The Schools Abroad

The Middlebury Schools in France, Germany, Italy and Spain are open to qualified graduate and undergraduate students. Each School is under the supervision of a resident Director of Studies appointed by the College to oversee all aspects of the program and to assist students in settling in the foreign city. Courses are taught by professors and distinguished critics and scholars either at the local universities or in special seminars organized for Middlebury College. It is expected that all students will maintain the spirit of the summer language pledge while they are abroad. The academic calendar varies slightly from country to country, but students should plan to leave for Europe in early September in order to be ready for the start of classes later in the month or in early October.

The Junior Program: Qualified juniors from Middlebury College and other institutions take advanced undergraduate courses to be counted towards the B.A. degree. Admission standards are high and preference is given to Middlebury College students for the limited number of available places, but other students are accepted whenever possible. Majors in foreign languages and other disciplines may apply, but it is expected that all will have already reached a level of language proficiency equal to the end of the fifth college semester. In some cases a preliminary summer at Middlebury may be required of juniors who need additional preparation before being allowed to register abroad. In Europe juniors benefit from both the privilege of studying the foreign language and culture in the country itself and also from the close association with the larger graduate programs in each city.

The Graduate Program: After spending the required preliminary summer on the Vermont campus, graduate students may complete their course of study for the M.A. degree in one of the Schools abroad. All are expected to carry a full academic load of courses in the areas of language, literature, and culture and civilization. D.M.L. candidates may elect to fulfill the required period of residency abroad by taking courses for credit in one of the Schools or by auditing classes in preparation for the general examinations. Unfortunately no provision can be made for part-time students. Graduation exercises are held on the Vermont campus in August.
SCHOOL IN FRANCE

Director of Studies: The Director for the 1975–76 academic year will be Professor Edward C. Knox, Associate Professor of French at Middlebury College.

Headquarter in Paris: The offices of the French School in France are located in Reid Hall, 4 rue de Chevreuse, Paris 6 (telephone: 3254044), a short walk from the Latin Quarter.

Faculty: Courses are taught by faculty members of the various French Institutes and branches of the University of Paris.

Housing: While each student is responsible for securing his own living accommodation, the Middlebury office in Reid Hall will provide addresses to students who wish to live with French families. Additional information on families, boarding houses, apartments and student residences will be made available to all accepted students during the spring and summer of 1975.

Program of Studies

The Junior Program: Juniors enroll for the full academic year in a program of studies designed both to complement courses taken at their home institution and to form a logical link between sophomore and senior years. All are required to enroll in a special year-long seminar organized especially for Middlebury juniors as an introduction to various French literary, social, political and intellectual institutions and their historical contexts. The first five weeks beginning in mid-September constitute an intensive orientation session. In October students consult with the Director of Studies to select three additional courses to be taken at the French Institutes and Branches of the University of Paris. A wide range of courses is available in art, film, history, language, linguistics, literature, political science and sociology.

The Graduate Program: After completing the summer at the French School on the Vermont campus, successful candidates begin the academic year in France with a special fall program organized by Middlebury College for the month of October. The required courses in translation, literary composition and explication de textes continue the necessary preparation for enrollment in the French academic system from November to June.

In Paris students earn nine units towards the twelve required for the M.A. degree. In addition to special Middlebury seminars, a full range of courses is offered in the areas of language, phonetics, literature, and culture and civilization at the following centers:

- Institut de Professeurs de Francais a l’Etranger (IPFE), Paris III
- Institut de Phonetique
- Institut d’Etudes Politiques
- Faculté des Lettres et Sciences Humaines
- Centre International d’Etudes Pédagogiques de Sèvres

All students are required to undertake an independent project that culminates in a “mémoire” or short thesis. Also they must include in their program one of the series of lectures given at one of the Paris universities open to the group in the field of “Lettres et Sciences Humaines.”
SCHOOL IN GERMANY

Director of Studies: The Director for 1975-76 will be D. Stevens Garlick, Assistant Professor of German at Middlebury College. Mr. Garlick will assist students with all official formalities and with their integration into the German academic community.

Headquarters in Mainz: The Office of the School is located at 6500 Mainz, Rheinstrasse 42 (telephone 06131-20059), a ten minute busride from the university campus.

Faculty: All courses are taught by the faculty of the Johannes Gutenberg-Universität where Middlebury students are enrolled for the full academic year from October to July.

Housing: Students are responsible for taking care of their own housing needs. Information on university dormitories is available at the Office of the German School on the Vermont campus.

Financial Aid: For a Middlebury Student who is an American citizen, the Johannes Gutenberg-Universität awards a fellowship of DM 5000 (subject to change, payable in ten monthly installments); applicants with pedagogical experience and some background in English are preferred, since there may be a limited teaching assignment.

In addition, during the course of the summer session, Middlebury designates two applicants for DAAD scholarships on a competitive basis according to scholastic ability and need.

Additional information on financial aid is included on page 48.

Program of Studies

The Junior Program: Juniors usually go abroad in the early spring and enroll in four courses for the Sommersemester in Mainz, which is the equivalent of one semester at Middlebury College. One course must be a proseminar and one may be a specially designed course for foreign students at the University. The remaining two courses can be in Fachbereich 13 (Germanistik and Vergleichende Literaturwissenschaft) or in related Fachbereiche if approved by the individual instructor and the Director of Studies. We regret that applications from undergraduates enrolled at institutions other than Middlebury can not be accepted for the 1975-76 academic year. We plan in the future to accept applications from undergraduates enrolled at other colleges and universities, but a preliminary summer at the Middlebury campus will remain an absolute requirement.

The Graduate Program: After successfully completing three courses at the summer session of the German School, M.A. candidates take at least ten courses in Germanistik (and comparative literature if desired) in Fachbereich 13 of the Johannes Gutenberg-Universität—five each semester. Two courses may be in related areas, such as philosophy or history, if the language of instruction is German. A successful seminar paper in each of the two semesters is an absolute requirement. With permission, two courses specially designed for foreign students may be counted toward the M.A. A student who passes fewer than four courses in either semester will be asked to withdraw.

A course in a German university is usually a series of lectures or seminars to guide a student in his own study and preparation for a final examination. The resulting flexibility presents both an opportunity and a danger that must be resolved in careful consultation with the Director of Studies. All major lecture-courses are augmented by specially arranged Middlebury tutorials, and active student participation is assumed. The tutor’s evaluation of the student’s performance in these is as important as the final examination in the course.

The German university system does not use such terms as “course” or “credit.” Middlebury College, in granting an American degree, must assign values to the student’s work. The Director of Studies is responsible for evaluating the various parts of a student’s program, and his decision is final.

Students take the final examinations prepared by the professors in charge of their courses. After these examinations are evaluated by the German professors, the Middlebury Director of Studies equates the German grades to the American grading system. The German grade of 4 (ausreichend) is the lowest acceptable grade in the Wintersemester, 3-minus is the lowest passing grade in the Sommersemester.

Students should arrive in Mainz by September 20, 1975, and should check in at the School Office. The first week in October consists of a required orientation period.

The Wintersemester extends from about October 15 to February 15 with a two-week Christmas recess. The Sommersemester usually begins about April 15 and ends about July 15.

The Director of Studies will guide each student in the selection of courses, a preliminary listing of which will be available in Middlebury during the preceding summer. Lecture courses, preseminars and seminars of German language, literature, phonetics, Volkskunde and philology are the province of the Deutsches Institut, which is grouped with Vergleichende Literaturwissenschaft in Fachbereich 13. A maximum of two courses in culture and civilization may be selected from the offerings of other Fachbereiche. A sample list of courses in Fachbereich 13 for a semester follows.

SCHOOL IN ITALY

Director of Studies: The Director of Studies for 1975-76 will be named in the spring of 1975.

Headquarters in Florence: The School has its headquarters in the Palazzo Benivieni, Via delle Oche 3. Classes are held there during the Fall Term, and also the Stylistics course and the tutorials for courses at the University of Florence.

Students are expected to keep in close touch with the School's office (telephone: 215-782), for help and guidance on academic matters, as well as for information of cultural, professional, social or touristic interest.

Visitors to Florence are cordially invited to visit these facilities.

Faculty: The courses in Italian art, history, language, and literature that make up the Fall Term curriculum, as well as the Stylistics course which covers the entire academic year, are taught by instructors engaged by Middlebury College. Once the courses get under way at the University of Florence, Middlebury students will have tutorial help in the University courses in which they are enrolled.

Housing: Students are strongly urged to live with an Italian family. Although each student must make his own arrangements for room and board, the Director of Studies will render all possible assistance and will recommend private families who offer comfortable living accommodations to students.

Program of Studies

The Junior Program: Students who are accepted into the Junior Year program are required to enroll in the Italian School for the session immediately preceding the year of study in Florence. At the Italian School they take three courses, at least one of which must be in language study. In Florence they take the courses that make up the Fall Term curriculum (Art, History, Literature, Stylistics) and four courses for the length of the Italian academic year. They continue with the on-going Stylistics course, they take a literature course prescribed by the Director of Studies, and they choose two electives from among the regular course offerings of the University of Florence. Throughout the Fall Term and the regular academic year Junior Program students will have tutorial help in all their courses.

The Graduate Program: Final acceptance into the Graduate Program in Italy normally depends on the satisfactory completion of a session of study at the Italian School. The year in Florence consists of two parts: the Fall Term program of courses commissioned by Middlebury College beginning in early October and running from seven to nine weeks, and the academic year at the University of Florence from November to June. During the Fall Term all students are required to take the following courses: Art, History (including History of Florence), Literature, and Stylistics. At the end of the Fall Term there will be a written and/or oral examination in each one of these courses.

At the beginning of the academic year at the University of Florence, each student consults with the Director of Studies to choose a year-long program of study. Selections are made from the programs of the Facoltà di Lettere e Filosofia and the Facoltà di Magistero at the University of Florence. Four courses constitute a full load. Normally all students continue the Stylistics course begun during the Fall Term, plus three other courses. All students are required to take at least one course in Italian literature, and none may take more than two.

Other courses are chosen from among the following fields, which are covered regularly at the University of Florence:

Letteratura italiana
Letteratura italiana moderna e contemporanea
Letterature moderne comparate
Storia della lingua italiana
Filologia Dantesca
Linguistica
Storia dell’arte
Storia medievale
Storia moderna
Storia contemporanea
Geografia

Students with special interest and qualifications may, with permission, enroll in one course in a field other than those listed above. Courses take the form of lectures and section meetings (esercitazioni), seminars, small discussion groups and independent research.

Attendance is required at all tutorial sessions, and work done in these sessions is an important part of the final grade. In every course the final grade is based on the following criteria:

1. The examinations taken at the University
2. The judgment of: (a) the Director of Studies; (b) University professors, whose evaluation will be sought by the Director of Studies; and (c) the professor of the Stylistics course and the tutors.

Every student must complete one seminar paper of 20–30 pages based in part on course work undertaken for the year; or he or she may write the paper on another topic under the supervision of the Director of Studies and the Stylistics professor. The paper should demonstrate a high level of written control of the language and the student’s ability to deal with references and/or course material in treating the topic in a systematic manner.

Upon completion of all final examinations every student is expected to turn in his University of Florence libretto to the Director of Studies, to permit the recording and computing of grades without delay.

If regular university classes should be interrupted, Middlebury students will receive special guidance for their independent study in preparation for final examinations in all their courses. Students are reminded that under the European system, university lectures do not provide a body of information on which students are examined, but are only models or samples of the kind and method of study which students are required to do on their own.

Every student is required to earn three graduate units at the summer session of the Italian School on the Vermont campus. Nine graduate units are earned during the academic year abroad, making the total of twelve units required for the Master’s degree. In special cases a limited number of units may be transferred from other graduate institutions.
SCHOOL IN SPAIN

Director of Studies: The Director of Studies for 1974–75 will be Dr. Eduardo Camacho Guizado, former professor of Spanish American Literature at the State University of New York at Albany. A Ph.D. recipient from the University of Madrid, Professor Camacho has taught at the Middlebury Spanish School since 1967. Before joining the faculty at Albany, he was professor at the Universidad de los Andes, Bogotá, Colombia. He is also Director of the Spanish School on the Vermont campus during the summer.

Headquarters in Madrid: The office of the Director and all classrooms are located at the Instituto Internacional, Miguel Angel 8 (telephone: 4198198).

Faculty: All courses are organized especially by Middlebury College for its own students. They are taught by professors from the University of Madrid and by other distinguished authorities in the fields of letters, history and the arts.

Housing: The College cannot provide housing for students, but the Secretary in Madrid maintains up-to-date lists of families and apartments where Middlebury students have lived in previous years. The Director of Studies and the Secretary will do everything possible to help students settle in Madrid before the opening of classes.

Program of Studies

The Junior Program: Juniors may enroll for the fall or spring semesters or for the full academic year. The program of studies is made up of eight courses as follows:

First Semester
- Lengua avanzada
- El folklore español
- El fondo histórico de España
- El teatro español actual

Second Semester
- Lengua avanzada
- Explicación de textos
- La cultura española contemporánea
- La novela contemporánea

During the first two weeks of each semester all new juniors are expected to participate in an orientation program designed to introduce them quickly to life in the Spanish capital and the surrounding area. Visits are arranged between classes to parts of Madrid, and the program usually includes an excursion to one of the nearby small towns such as Chinchón or Navalcarnero. Later in the semester all juniors are invited to join with the graduate students on similar weekend excursions to other parts of Spain.

The Graduate Program: During the required preliminary summer in Middlebury, graduate students normally take three courses: Advanced Spanish Language and two other courses.
In Madrid, they follow a balanced program of four courses (units) each semester. The choice depends on academic performance at Middlebury and upon previous studies, needs and interests. In addition, each student is required to write a long paper (one unit) under the supervision of a faculty adviser, to complete the twelve units for graduation.

No student will be allowed to register for the School in Spain if his conduct or academic performance during the summer is judged unsatisfactory.

Courses for the fall semester begin in mid September and end with final examination in late December. After the Christmas vacation the spring semester opens in the third week of January and continues until late May. The resident Director of Studies is available to advise students at all times throughout the year, beginning with a series of orientation meetings on the Vermont campus during the summer when questions of registration, transportation, housing and excursions in Spain are discussed at length.

The program of studies varies slightly from year to year, but the following list is representative of the usual courses:

General Information

SUMMER

Application: Application materials may be obtained by writing to the Secretary of the appropriate Language School, Sunderland Language Center, Middlebury College, Middlebury, VT 05753. Admission is granted on the basis of academic qualifications and the availability of space. There is no general application deadline, but students requesting financial aid must do so before 15 January 1975. A non-refundable fee of $15 must accompany each NEW student's application.

Credits: Courses for undergraduate credit in French, German, Italian, and Spanish award six credits for each level. Courses in the nine-week session of Chinese, Japanese and Russian award ten credits for each level.

Courses for graduate credit in French, German, Italian and Spanish and all six-week courses in Russian award one unit of credit.

A unit consists of 30–45 hours of intensive classroom instruction plus additional daily requirements which may include work in the language laboratory, extensive reading, and written assignments.
Transfer credit: After successful completion of one summer at Middlebury, candidates for the M.A. and D.M.L. degrees may request permission of the Director or Dean to transfer up to three units from another institution. All such units/courses must be taken at the graduate level of an accredited college or university offering graduate credit towards an advanced degree. They should normally be taught in the foreign language in the areas of language and linguistics, culture and civilization, literature, and professional preparation.

All credits and units expire after ten years.

Fees and Finances

Application fee: A non-refundable fee of $15 must accompany each NEW student's application.

Enrollment deposit: Upon acceptance all students are required to pay a $50 enrollment deposit to be applied to the tuition charge. This deposit will be refunded provided that the student notifies the School in writing before 1 May of his intention not to attend.

Summer Session fee:

Six Week Session
Tuition $540, Room $145, Board $235

Seven Week Session
Tuition $540, Room $165, Board $280

Nine Week Session
Tuition $750, Room $200, Board $330

Extra Course fee: Students receiving permission to take an extra course for credit must pay an extra course fee of $180 (one unit) or an extra half-course fee of $90 (one-half unit).
Auditing: Regularly enrolled full-time students may audit additional courses without charge if sufficient space is available.

Auditing privileges may be granted to other students under the following conditions:

Permission of the appropriate language school director is required.

Final decision on the acceptance of auditors will not be made until after the completion of the formal registration of full-time students in June.

The charges are: Tuition, $75 per week; Board, $50 per week; Room, $35 per week.

Method of Payment: Statements are mailed in late May and must be paid in full before Registration in June.

Refunds: No refunds are made in the case of withdrawal after registration.

Veterans Administration (VA) Program: Students eligible for benefits under the Veteran's Readjustment Benefits Act may obtain an application for a Program of Education from their regional VA office. On the basis of the information given on the application, the VA will issue a Certificate of Eligibility which must be presented to Mrs. Marjorie C. Grant, Sunderland Language Center, at the time of registration at Middlebury in June.

If the student is presently attending another institution he should complete a form requesting a change of place of training. A student who has previously attended Middlebury with veteran's benefits need only report to Mrs. Grant.

Financial Aid: Limited scholarship and work aid assistance is awarded to qualified students. Selection of those eligible will be made by the Schools based on a demonstrated need. Students requesting financial aid must do so before 15 January 1975. The deadline for the return of the completed Student Financial Aid Statement is 15 February 1975. Students also should be prepared to apply for loans from their home state Guaranteed Insured Loan Program. A detailed information sheet and financial aid request card are included with the application materials provided by the individual Language Schools.

Health Services: A full-time physician, assisted by a registered nurse, holds regular office hours in the infirmary, and is on emergency call at all times. This service is free to all full-time students. When a student's illness requires continued medical services, the student assumes all financial obligations. Special prescription diets cannot be provided.

Insurance: The College enrolls all full-time students in a plan of medical reimbursement for the expenses arising from an accident. Maximum reimbursement is $500 for each accident. The plan is broad in scope and covers all accidents occurring while the Language Schools are in session.

Living Accommodations: Students are assigned to rooms, normally double, in the dormitories of their School. They take their meals in the School dining hall with faculty and staff members. The College does not have space for housing members of a student's family nor can special diets be provided.

Only under special circumstances will students be granted permission to live off-campus and even such individuals will be required to take their meals in the dining hall.
Transcripts: One official transcript will be issued without charge on written request to the Office of the Registrar, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont 05753. A fee of $1.00 is charged for each additional transcript. No transcript will be issued to students who are financially indebted to the College until satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Comptroller.

Registration: A Registration Bulletin will be furnished each accepted student.

SCHOOLS ABROAD

Application:
Graduate program: Since all graduate students applying to the Schools Abroad are required to spend a summer on the Vermont campus, application should be made to the appropriate Language School according to the procedures on page 44.

Junior Program: Application materials may be obtained by writing to the Secretary of the appropriate Language School, Sunderland Language Center, Middlebury College, Middlebury, VT 05753. Admission is determined on the basis of academic qualifications and the availability of space. A non-refundable fee of $15 must accompany each NEW student’s application.

Veterans Administration (VA) Program: See page 46.

Expenses:

Transportation: In order to assist students in obtaining transatlantic transportation at the most economical rates, Middlebury College expects to provide group flights to Paris and Madrid in September. Additional information (including the cost of surface transportation in Europe to Florence and Mainz) will be sent to all students accepted into the Schools. Other flights are usually arranged by both the Council on International Educational Exchange (777 United Nations Plaza, New York 10017) and the Institute of International Education (809 United Nations Plaza, New York 10017), and students may wish to write independently to these organizations for their flight schedules.

Housing: Students make their own arrangements for housing, although Middlebury College will provide assistance in helping students settle in the foreign city. Costs vary from country to country and according to the kind of accommodation preferred (family, pension, dormitory, apartment), but a budget of approximately $2500–$3000 should be anticipated to cover the cost of room, board, and personal expenses for nine months.

Financial Aid:

Graduate Program: A limited number of National Direct Student Loans and scholarship grants are awarded to qualified students. Selection of those eligible based on demonstrated need will be made by the Schools and the Office of Financial Aid. Awards will be made in conjunction with those for the required summer session.

Junior Program: Financial assistance for the Junior program is available to Middlebury students only. Other juniors are advised to contact the Office of Financial Aid at their home institution.

Insurance: Medical insurance is required. A low cost policy is available through Middlebury College. An application form for this coverage will be included with the August billing. For further details you may write directly to the Office of the Comptroller, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont 05753.

Transcripts: One official transcript will be issued without charge on written request to the Office of the Registrar, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont 05753. A fee of $1.00 is charged for each additional transcript. No transcript will be issued to students who are financially indebted to the College until satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Comptroller.
